COMES TO RESCUE OF ORIENTAL BANK

Famous Woman Financier Reported to Have Authorized the Chemical Bank to Provide All the Funds that Are Necessary.

RUN FOLLOWS THE CLOSING OF TWO OTHER BIG BANKS.

Troubles of the New Amsterdam and Mechanics and Traders' Due to the "Taint" of the Old Morse-Heinze-Thomas Influence-

'As a result of the suspension of the New Amsterdam National Bank and the Mechanics and Traders' Bank, the Oriental Bank was subjected Maine to a severe run to-day, both at the main institution, at Broadway and John street, and the branch at Grand street and the Bowery. There were long lines of anxious depositors in both banking houses at the closing

It is understood in banking circles that Mrs. Hetty Green, who probably commands more ready money than any banker in New York, since the death of Russell Sage, has promised to stand back of the Oriental Bank as long as President Hugh Kelly desires to keep it open. TO REOPEN TO-MORROW.

After the bank closed business for the day at 3 o'clock this afternoon or applications, are returnable on Feb. President Kelly said that the directors had decided to reopen to-morrow morning and pay off all demands. He said that about $200,000 had been paid out during the run to-day from the bank's own resources, and that initiative of bondholders' committees the reserve of $1,000,000 obtained from other banks had not as yet been and creditors of the three companies.

District-Attorney Jerome this afternoon concluded his final address to the jury in the trial of Harry Thaw.

Justice Dowling announced that he would permit the jury to consider the speeches of the two sides overnight and deliver his charge to-morrow morning. The case will be given to the jury before noon.

Mr. Jerome flayed White in his speech and handled Evelyn Thaw with gloves. The reverse was the case in the last trial. He declared that the story Evelyn Nesbit told Harry Thaw was in all essential details true, with the exception of the drugging incident.

"I do not believe she was drugged. The place she described in Twenty-fourth street is as true as you sit there," he said to the jury, "and was maintained by a miserable group of men for just such a purpose, some of whom are in this city now, and some have departed from the
